Diamonds Down Under

Diamonds Down Under: Seeking Western Australia's Treasure is a StoryMap published by the Geological Survey of Western Australia.

Original text from Chapter 2, in Mineral Resources Bulletin 25 Gemstones of Western Australia (second edition) has been overhauled and updated to suit this online interactive platform. This new product incorporates interactive prospectivity maps and video, and includes current information about:

- History of diamonds and some special examples
- How the hardest natural material on Earth forms
- Characteristics and physical properties
- Exploration and types of deposits
- Special Western Australian diamond mines, e.g. Argyle and Ellendale
- Future of the industry

This is a fantastic immersive experience for amateur geologists, gemmologists and anyone interested in this prized gem.
